San Antonio, Belize, Central America

Chris Freeman

Belize is a small country in Central America, about the size of Massachusetts, just south of Mexico. Sue and I were in a small Mayan village in the SW corner, near Guatemala.

This was an independent clinic run by a Sister Marion. The little girl in the picture is Benedicta a 5 year old girl who had Spina Bifida whom we spent a lot of time with there.

These two pictures are from the state run clinic in San Antonio. The above picture is of Sue and I in front of the state run clinic. They focused upon prenatal and child health but they dealt with a variety of medical problems while I was there. They also ran a mobile clinic (an old ambulance) that served the more outlying regions.
