Marigat Kenya

I would like to share some of my experiences from Kenya with you! In Kenya, Kris and I worked at a mobile clinic (our vehicle is pictured above). Each day we would travel to various sites in the Great Rift Valley and set up the clinic. The clinic provided care for infants, pregnant women, and ill Kenyans.

Above is a photo of some members of the Kampi ya Turkana tribe. These people lived on the outskirts of Marigat in small thatch-roofed huts. Kris and I joined in a prayer session with the Turkanas; they are very poor and praying gives them a sense of hope and strength for the future.

Below is a picture of Kris and I at the equator (in case you overlook the obvious)! Above is the Christian Youth group. We spent most weekends travelling Kenya with them and learning about their culture. The summer of service was a true growing experience for me, I learned a lot about myself and Kenya. Although I volunteered my time to help the mobil clinic, I am the one that gained the most from the experience.
